

Paying for College:

Scholarship & Financial Aid Resources

- Never pay for financial aid or scholarship information. If there's a fee, it's a scam.
- You'll find many "scholarship sweepstakes" sites online. The odds of "winning" are slim, and you end up being a marketing test subject. Your time is better spent applying directly to specific scholarships.
- Some scholarship search engines require that you set up personal accounts before you can access applications. Always be cautious about disclosing your personal information.
- For the best return on your investment of time, prioritize state and local scholarships over national ones.
- Most of your scholarship dollars will come from the school you choose to attend. Once accepted, you'll have access to internal opportunities.
